Wm. Bray, who was stricken with paralysis on Christmas Day, died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen, southwest of town, last Friday evening about six o'clock. He never regained consciousness after he was stricken. A grand son, Earl Bray, who was fatally injured under the wheels of a wagon on Thursday of last week, died at about the same hour his grand father died and the funeral of both was held Monday at West Union church and was attended by a large number of friends. Mr. Bray was well known and highly respected. By his death five children are left to mourn for one they loved.
